

Victor Galán Saúco

Overview of subtropical banana industries

Dr. Victor Galán Saúco is Emeritus Professor and former Director of the Department of Tropical Fruits at the Instituto Canario de Investigaciones Agrarias (1980-2007). He is also a consultant in tropical fruits, mainly bananas, mango and litchis. He has been chairperson of the ISHS Section on Tropical Fruits (1999-2006), vice-chair of the ISHS Section on Banana and Plantains (2006-2010) and Co-president of the 28th International Horticultural Congress in Lisbon. He has also been President of the Spanish Society of Horticultural Science (1995-2003). He has taught courses in tropical fruits in European and Latin American universities and governmental institutions. He authored many scientific papers, books and book chapters on tropical fruits. His main expertise in bananas is protected cultivation and varietal evaluation under subtropical conditions.